

MESSAGE

My message to the Gibraltarians is that they must make every effort to communicate with members of Parliament and inform them of their political views and aspirations. Unfortunately today the majority of MPs do not know about either Gibraltar or the Gibraltar problem. Before I flew to Gibraltar I had found it difficult to find people who had either been to the Rock or considered going down there. The knowledge about the Gibraltar problem was nil. It is up to the Gibraltarians to rectify this lack of knowledge in the United Kingdom because noone else is going to do it on their behalf.'